HICKMAN, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1915

Number 23

Noted Fire Chief Gives Views on Fire Conditions in Hickman.

The writer asked Chief Tyson for statement as to what he considered the conditions in Hickman pertaining to fire protection. After some hesitation the Chief consented to make the following statement:

"Your city is in a deplorable condition as regards fire protection. You are almost without fire protection. I was very much surprised to learn that a city the size of Hickman, with the various fire hazards, contained within its corporate limits and surrounding territory, was without a fire chief backed up with an organization of volunteer firemen. I would suggest that his honor, the Mayor and members of Council, get busy at once, and select some competent man and elect him Fire Chief with authority to organize a volunteer company composed of not less than twenty-five members, and more if it is possible to secure them. It does seem to me that if the young men of Hickman were given proper support and encouragement you would have no trouble in securing fifty members for the organization under present conditions. An insurance company is certainly possessed of considerable nerve to place insurance in a city with as little protection as Hickman has. My prediction is that if conditions are not improved you will have a fire some day with a high wind blowing that will wipe your city off the face of the earth. I have visited all of your hose reels and found them in an almost useless condition. No care taken of them whatever. This condition is brought about by not having an organization with some one in authority to detail some one to look after and keep the equipment in proper condition and ready at all times to be serviceable during time of fire. I don't want to appear as an alarmist but the lives and property of the citizens of Hickman are constantly in jeopardy, it is almost criminal negligence."

"In the event we purchase a piece of motor apparatus, where would you suggest placing it for the safest and most efficient service?"

"By all means on top of hill.

It would be much easier to come down the hill to a fire in the congested district which could be done from the neighborhood of the court house in about two minutes. Being on the hill you would be able to give more prompt and efficient service to the residence district and your very large school building, where the greatest danger exists to loss of life, whereas if you were called to a fire on the hill during bad weather the progress would necessarily be very slow on account of the steep grades, if the apparatus was stationed in the bottom."

"As a rule would the installation of modern motor fire apparatus, and the appointment of a competent fire chief, with a volunteer company, under strict discipline, trained in modern methods of fire fighting, have a tendency to reduce the insurance rate?"

"Most assuredly it would and I believe every insurance company will agree with me and will cheerfully allow a reasonable and sensible reduction, and the amount of insurance saved by the reduced rate to the citizens of Hickman would soon cover the expense incurred in the purchase of modern equipment. I would also suggest that all two (2) inch outlets on your present fire hydrants be changed to accommodate two and one half (2½) inch hose.

"I also noticed one thing in particular that will be very dangerous for motor fire apparatus going to a fire on Clinton street. That is, the shape of the street. It has too much crown. Should the apparatus attempt to go round a buggy or wagon, it would be pretty apt to land against the curb. This street should be graded to proper shape to allow the use of same from curb to curb. This should be done before the apparatus is placed in service. In its present condition it is very dangerous, especially in wet weather.

"I have covered your city pretty thoroughly during my stay by way of inspection. I find several buildings that should be condemned and torn down at Sergeant Major James Deaver, United States Marine Corps, wealthy enlisted man in the united services, was retired last week after thirty years of continuous service with Uncle Sam's sea soldiers, possessing real estate, stocks, bonds, mortgages, and personal property valued at more than $100,000. Deaver had no capital when he entered the Marine Corps in 1885 and has been dependent entirely on his pay as an enlisted man, and his own efforts in the accumulation of wealth. He is one out of a million.

Monday we penned a few lines in which we stated that there had been twelve killings in this county since Aug. 7th. This had hardly left the press when another victim was added to the list. The killing business is getting to be so common that it must be like the weather news—revised to the hour of going to press.

NOW ON SALE.

The Red Cross Christmas Seals are now on sale in Hickman. The local representative of the Anti-tuberculosis Society, the Rev. W. F. Renneberg, has placed the seals on sale at the following local stores: Cowgill's Drug Store, Smith & Amberg's Store, Miller & Alexander, Helm & Ellison, R. L. Bradley, Schlenker's Jewelry Store, Leibovitz and the Hickman Drug Store.

Red Cross Christmas Seals save lives. Every seal you buy is a bullet in the fight against tuberculosis. It protects your country, your neighbor, your family and yourself from the disease and its cost. Tuberculosis is our most destructive disease. One person out of every four in America who die between the ages of fifteen and fifty die from tuberculosis. It is the chief cause of poverty. But it is preventable and conquerable. This war, man against disease, is a winning war—not wasting war, man against man. It is the War that Pays—it brings prosperity. Enlist in the campaign, buy the Christmas Seals and get them early.

FREE DELIVERY DEC. 1. TWO CARRIERS NAMED.

The long talked-of city delivery for Hickman is expected to materialize on Wednesday next, provided Inspector Ashton arrives in time to set the delivery machinery in motion.

As formerly told in these columns, there are to be two carriers. The temporary carriers named are Warren Ellison and Ed C. Mozley. They will hold down the job until the civil service examination can be held and probably afterwards, too.

Two deliveries will be made each day—one in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Later about five collecting stations will be established. Patrons, however, may leave letters in their private mail boxes for collection by the carriers, provided sufficient postage has been attached. The carriers sell the stamps; enter no houses while on duty; leave mail where suitable boxes are provided on the front of the house or at the gate. Remember also that houses, if they get the delivery service, must provide mail receptacles or slots in the front of their buildings. Carriers are not required to enter business houses and carry mail back to the office of the collector.

It is also necessary that both business and residences houses be numbered. City delivery is a step forward for Hickman. It is a great convenience and time-saver. This service will be new to many of us, but ordinary discretion will facilitate matters for both carriers and patrons and everyone should work to the end of making it a success and permanent.

THE BIGGEST INTEREST.

A man in another State was once asked which of his several investments paid him the highest rate of interest, and he promptly replied that it was the dollar he paid on his subscription to the local paper.

"One day I wanted to buy a cow," he said, "and was intending to make a trip of about 15 miles to get one I knew was for sale at a certain price. But just before I happened to pick up a local paper and noticed that a nearby neighbor was offering one of the same breed at a dollar less than the other one.

"He really sold it to me at $4 less. I saved a long thirty mile drive and $4 in cash because I had paid a dollar for the paper.

"That was just one instance, but as a matter of fact I saved both time and money in fifteen or twenty different ways during the year, and all through the ads in the paper that had cost me but a dollar a year. I consider that dollar the best investment I ever made, and I am investing as regularly as the year rolls around, and always with the most satisfactory results."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

There is probably no place on earth better than a country newspaper office to learn the kinds of people there are. Some get huffy if a statement is sent and others will not pay until they receive a statement. Some will pay without a statement and others will not pay whether a statement is sent or not. Some thought they owed more and some thought they didn't owe more and some thought they didn't owe so much. Some say they couldn't get along without the paper and others say it does not amount to much. But the meanest scribbler in the list is the man who takes it until he is shut off for non-payment and then spends half his time explaining how he used to take "the thing" but stopped it because it was no account.

A FOOL AND HIS MONEY

By

M'CUTCHEON,

Copyright, 1915, by George Barr McCutcheon.

He made such a row about his tub that I had to give him the pail of hot water Britton had placed in my bedroom preparatory to my own bath.

At breakfast Jasper complained about the bats. He couldn't for the life of him see why I didn't have screens in the windows.

Later on Mrs. Titus, who had coffee and toast in her room, joined us in the loggia and announced that the coffee was stone cold. Moreover, she did not like the guest chamber into which she had been moved by order of the countess. It was too huge for a bed-chamber, and the iron window shutters creaked all night long.

"But you love the view you have of the Danube?" I inquired rather mournfully.

"I don't sit in the window all night, Mr. Smart," she said tartly.

I at once insisted on her resuming possession of my bedroom and promptly had all of my things moved into the one she had occupied during the night. When the countess heard of this arrangement she was most indignant. She got me off in a corner and cruelly informed me that I hadn't the vestige of a backbone. She must have said something to her mother, too, for when evening came around I had to move back into my own room, Mrs. Titus sweetly assuring me that under no consideration would she consent to impose upon my good nature and hospitality to such an extent, etc.

During the day at odd times Collingraft made lofty suggestions in regard to what could be done with the place to make it more or less inhabitable, and Jasper—who, by the way, I was beginning to fear I should not like after all—said he'd just like to have a whack at the thing himself. First thing he'd do would be to turn some of those old, unused rooms into squash and racket courts, and he'd also put in a swimming pool and a hot water plant.

Late in the afternoon I stole far up into the eastern tower to visit my adorable friend Rosemary. We played house together on the nursery floor, and I soon got over my feeling of depression. But even in play I was made to realize that I was not the master of the house. She ruled me with the utmost despotism, but I didn't mind. She permitted me to slip honey from that cunning place in her little neck and managed to call me Unko. My heart grew warm and soft again under the spell of her.

We Played House Together on the Nursery Floor.

The countess watched us at play from her seat by the window. She was strangely still and pensive. I had the feeling that she was watching me all the time and that there was a shadow of anxiety in her lovely eyes. She smiled at our pranks, and yet there was something sad in the smile.

I was young again with Rosemary and full of glee. She took me out of myself. I forgot the three Tituses and with them many of my woes. Here was a cure for the blues—this gay life in the middle of the unspeakable Tarnowsky!

I lay awake for hours that night, but when I finally went to sleep—and heaven knows I needed it—it was with the soporific resolution to put my house rigidly in order the very next day. The Titus family (omitting the countess and Rosemary) was to be favored with an ultimatum from which there could be no appeal. John Bellamy Smart had decided with Morpheus smoothing out the wrinkles of perplexity—that he would be master in his own house.

My high resolve flattened itself out a little after the sound sleep I had, and I make no doubt I should have wavered sadly in my purpose had not a crisis arisen to shape my courage for me in a rather emphatic way.

Shortly after breakfast Mrs. Titus came downstairs very smartly gowned for the street. She announced that she was going into the town for an hour or two and asked me to have one of the Schmicks ferry her across the river. There was a famous antique shop there—memory of other days—and she wanted to browse awhile in search of bronzes and bronzes.

I looked at her aghast. I recognized the crisis, but for a moment was unable to marshal my powers of resistance. Nothing my consternation, she calmly assured me that there wouldn't be the least danger of detection, as she was going to be heavily veiled and very cautious.

"My dear Mrs. Titus," I murmured in my dismay, "it isn't to be considered. I am sure you won't persist in this when I tell you that Tarnowsky's agents are sure to see you and—"

She laughed. "Tarnowsky's agents? Why should they be here?"

"They seem to be everywhere."

"I can assure you there is none within fifty miles of Schloss Rothhofen. Our men are in the city. Four of them preceded me. This morning I had Mr. Bangs telephone to the hotel where the chief operative is staying—in the guise of an American tourist, and he does it very cleverly for an Englishman too—and he assures me that there is absolutely no danger. Even Mr. Bangs is satisfied."

"I am forced to say that I am by no means satisfied that it is a safe or wise thing to do, Mrs. Titus," I said, with more firmness than I thought I possessed.

She raised her delicate eyebrows in a most exasperating, well bred, admonitory way.

"I am quite sure, Mr. Smart, that Dillingham is a perfectly trustworthy detective, and—"

"But why take the slightest risk?" "It is necessary for me to see Dillingham, that is the long and short of it," she said coldly. "One can't discuss things over a telephone, you know, Mr. Bangs understands. And, by the way, Mr. Smart, I have taken the liberty of calling up the central office of the telephone company to ask if they can run an extension wire to my dressing room. I hope you do not mind."

There is no question but that indignation and the distressed feeling which always goes with it, can be promptly relieved by taking a

"Not in the least. I should have thought of it myself."

"You have so much to think of, poor man! And now will you be good enough to have Hawkes order the man to row me across the river?"

"I am very sorry, Mrs. Titus," said I firmly, "but I fear I must declare myself. I cannot permit you to go into the town today."

She was thunderstruck. "Are you in earnest?" she cried after searching my face rather intently for a moment.

"Unhappily, yes. Will you let me explain—"

"The idea!" she exclaimed as she drew herself to her full height and withered me with a look of surpassing scorn. "Am I to regard myself as a prisoner, Mr. Smart?"

"Oh, I beg of you, Mrs. Titus"—I began miserably.

"Please answer my question."

Her tone cut me like the lash of a whip. My choler rose.

"I do not choose to regard myself as a jailer. My only object in opposing this—"

"I have never known anything so absurd." Two bright red spots appeared in her cheeks. "Your attitude is most extraordinary. However, I shall go to the city this morning, Mr. Smart. Pray give me the credit of having sense enough to— Ah, Collingraft!"

The two sons approached from the breakfast room, where they had been enjoying a 10 o'clock chop. Collingraft, noting his mother's attire, accelerated his speed and was soon beside us.

"Going out, mother?" he inquired, flicking the ash from his cigarette.

"If Mr. Smart will be good enough to withdraw his opposition," she said icily.

He gave me a sharp look. "What's up?"

"Mrs. Titus doesn't seem to realize the risk she runs in—"

"Risk? Do you suppose, Mr. Smart, I would jeopardize my daughter's—"

"What's up?" repeated Collingraft insistently.

"Mr. Smart calmly informs me that I am not to go into the city."

"I don't see that Mr. Smart has anything to say about it," said her son coldly. "If he"—He paused, glaring at me.

I looked him squarely in the eye. If he had possessed the acumen of a pollywog he would have seen that my Dutch was up.

"One moment, Mr. Titus," I said, setting my jaw. "I have this to say about it. You are guests in my house. We are jointly interested in the effort to protect the Countess Tarnowsky. I consider it to be the height of imprudence for any member of your family to venture into the city now or at any time during her stay in this castle. I happen to know that Tarnowsky is having me watched for some purpose or other. I don't think he suspects that the countess is here, but I greatly fear that he believes I am interested in her cause. He suspects me. You have heard of our recent encounter. He knows my position pretty well by this time. Mrs. Titus says that the man Dillingham assures her there is no danger. Well, I can only say that Dillingham is a fool, and I don't purpose having my own safety threatened by—"

"Your safety?" exclaimed he. "I like that! What have you got to be afraid of?"

"You seem to forget that I am harboring a fugitive from justice," I said flatly.

Mrs. Titus gasped. "How dare you?"

"The Countess Tarnowsky is wanted by the authorities for kidnapping, and I think you know the facts quite as well as I do," I went on harshly. "God knows I am doing my best to protect her. I am risking more than you seem to appreciate. If she is found here my position isn't likely to be an enviable one. I am not thinking solely of myself, believe me, but after all I contend that I have a right to assert myself in a crisis that may affect me vitally. I trust you will see my position and act accordingly—with consideration if nothing else."

Mrs. Titus did not take her eyes off mine while I was speaking. There was an expression of utter amazement in them. No one had ever opposed her before in just this way. I gathered she didn't know what to make of it.

"I fear you exaggerate the extent of your peril, Mr. Smart," she said dryly. "Of course I have no desire to put you in jeopardy, but it seems to me—"

"Leaving me out of the case altogether, don't you think it is a bit unfair to the countess?" I asked in some heat. "She doesn't want to go to jail."

"Jail?" she cried angrily.

"That's no way to speak about"—began Collingraft furiously.

I broke in rashly. "If you please, Mr. Titus, be good enough to keep your temper. I have no desire to appear harsh and arbitrary, but I can see that it is necessary to speak plainly. There isn't anything in the world I will not do to help you and the countess in this unfortunate business, Mrs. Titus. I hope you believe me when I say as much. I am her friend. I want to be yours if you will let me. But I reserve the right to say what shall be and what shall not be done as long as you are under my roof. Just a moment, Mr. Titus! I think we are quite agreed that your sister is to depart from here on the 14th of the month. I am to be her escort, so to speak, for a considerable distance in company with Mr. Bangs. Well, it must be clearly understood that not one of you is to show his or her face outside these walls until after that journey is over. That's plain speaking, isn't it?"

"I shall go where I please, and I'll go to the town today"—roared Collingraft, getting no further for the reason that his mother, seeing that I was desperately in earnest, gave vent to a little cry of alarm and clutched her big son by the shoulder. She begged him to listen to reason.

"Reason!" he gasped.

"If you—or any of you—put a foot outside these walls," I declared, "you will not be allowed to re-enter. That's flat!"

"By cricky!" fell in fervent admiration from the lips of Jasper junior. I glanced at his beaming, astonished face. He positively was grinning. "Good for you! You're a wonder, Mr. Smart! By cricky! And you're dead right! We're darn fools!"

"Jasper!" gasped Mrs. Titus.

"Good for you, Jasper!" I cried warmly and took the hand he proffered.

"Collingraft, please take me to my room," murmured the mother. "I—I feel faint. Send for Althea. Ask Mr. Bangs to come to me at once."

I bowed stiffly. "I am sorry, Mrs. Titus, to have been so harsh, so assertive—"

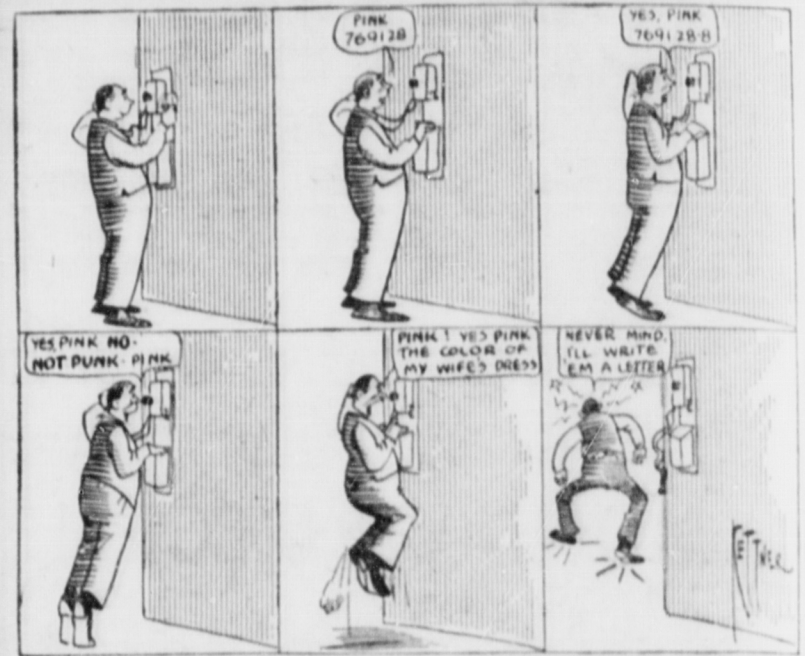

She held up both hands. "I never was so spoken to in all my life, Mr. Smart. I shall not forget it to my dying day."

She walked away from me, her pretty head held high and her chin suspiciously aquiver. Collingraft hastened after her, but not without giving me a stare in which rage and wonder struggled for the mastery.

I ran my hand over my moist brow. "Gee!" said Jasper Junior. "You've corked her all right, all right." He followed me into the study, and I couldn't get rid of him for hours.

CHAPTER XXI.

I Have a Tilt With Colingraft.

LATER in the forenoon the countess, with a queer little smile on her lips, told me that her mother considered me the most wonderful, the most forceful character she had ever encountered. I brightened up at that.

But Colingraft was not yet through with me. He sought me out just before luncheon. I was in the courtyard, listening patiently to Jasper Junior's theories and suggestions concerning the restoration of the entire facade of the castle and what he'd do if he were in my place. Strange to say, I was considerably entertained; he was not at all offensive. On the contrary, he offered his ideas in a pleasantly ingenuous way, always supplementing them with some such snave as "Don't you think so, Mr. Smart?" or "I'm sure you have thought of it yourself," or "Isn't that your idea too?" or "You've done wonders with the joint, old man."

Colingraft came directly up to where we were standing. "See here, Mr. Smart," he began austerely. "I've got something to say to you, and I'm not the sort to put it off. I appreciate what you've done for Aline and all that sort of thing, but your manner today has been intolerable, and we've got to come to an understanding."

I eyed him closely. "I suppose you're about to suggest that one or the other of us must evacuate—get out, so to speak," I said.

"Don't talk rubbish. You've got my mother bawling her eyes out upstairs and wishing she were dead. You've got to come off this high horse of yours. You've got to apologize to her, and quick at that. Understand!"

"Nothing will give me greater joy than to offer her my most abject apology. Mr. Titus, unless it would be her unqualified forgiveness."

"You'll have to withdraw everything you said."

"I'll withdraw everything except my ultimatum in respect to her putting a foot outside these walls. That still stands."

"I beg to differ with you."

"You may beg till you're black in the face," said I coolly.

He swallowed hard. His face twitched, and his hands were clenched.

"You are pretty much of a mucker, Mr. Smart," he said between his teeth. "I'm sorry my sister has fallen into your hands. The worst of it is she seems satisfied with everything you do. Good Lord, what she can see in you is beyond comprehension! Protection! Why, you couldn't protect her from the assault of a chicken!"

"Are you trying to insult me, Mr. Titus?"

"You couldn't resent it if I were. There never was an author with enough moral backbone to—"

"Wait! You are her brother. I don't want to have trouble with you. But if you keep on in this strain, Mr. Titus, I shall be compelled to thrash you soundly."

He fairly gasped. "Th—thrash me!" he choked out. Then he advanced.

Much to his surprise—and, strangely enough, not to my own—I failed to retreat. Instead I extended my left fist with considerable abruptness and precision, and he landed on his back.

I experienced a sensation of unholy joy. Up to that moment I had wondered whether I could do it with my left hand.

I looked at Jasper Junior. He was staring at me in utter bewilderment. "Good Lord, you—you've knocked him down!"

"I didn't think I could do it," said I austerely.

He sprang to his brother's side and assisted him to a sitting posture.

"Right to the jaw," shouted Jasper, with a strange enthusiasm.

"Left," I corrected him.

Colingraft gazed about him in a stupid, vacant fashion for a moment, and then allowed his glazed eyes to rest upon me. He sat rather limply, I thought.

"Are you hurt, Colly?" cried Jasper Junior.

A sickly grin, more of surprise than shame, stole over Colingraft's face. He put his hand to his jaw, then to the back of his head.

"By Jove!" he murmured. "I—I didn't think he had it in him. Let me get up!"

Jasper Junior was discreet. "Better let well enough alone, old!"

"I intend to," said Colingraft as he struggled to his feet.

For a moment he faced me uncertainly.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Titus," said I calmly.

"You—you are a wonder!" fell from his lips. "I'm not a coward, Mr. Smart. I've boxed a good deal in my time, but, by Jove, I never had a jolt like that!"

He turned abruptly and left us. We followed him slowly toward the steps. At the bottom he stopped and faced me again.

"You're a better man than I thought," he said. "If you'll bury the hatchet, so will I. I take back what I said to you not because I'm afraid of you, but because I respect you. What say? Will you shake hands?"

The surly, arrogant expression was gone from his face. In its place was a puzzled, somewhat inquiring look.

"No hard feeling on my part," I cried gladly. We shook hands. Jasper Junior slapped me on the back. "It's a most distressing, atavistic habit I'm getting into, knocking people down without rime or reason."

"I daresay you had reason," muttered Colingraft. "I got what was coming to me." An eager light crept into his handsome eyes. "By Jove, we can get in some corking work with the gloves while I'm here. I box quite a bit at home, and I miss it traveling about like this. What say to a half hour or so every day? I have the gloves in one of my trunks. I'm getting horribly seedy. I need stirring up."

"Charmed, I'm sure," I said, assuming an enthusiasm I did not feel. Put on the gloves with this strapping, skillful boxer? Not if I was firmly resolved to stop while my record was good. In a scientific clash with the gloves he would soon find out what a miserable duffer I was.

"And Jappy, here, is no slouch. He's as shifty as the dickens."

"The shifter the better," said I with great aplomb. Jasper Junior struck out his chest modestly and said, "Oh, piffle, Colly." But just the same I hadn't the least doubt in my mind that Jasper could "put it all over me." It was a rather sickening admission, though strictly private.

We made our way to my study, where I mildly suggested that we refrain from mentioning our little encounter to Mrs. Titus or the countess. I thought Colingraft was especially pleased with the idea. We swore secrecy.

"I've always been regarded as a peaceful, harmless grub," I explained, still somewhat bewildered by the feat I had performed and considerably shaken by the fear that I was degenerating into a positive ruffian. "You will believe me, I hope, when I declare that I was merely acting in self defense when I—"

He actually laughed. "Don't apologize," he could not resist the impulse to blurt out once more, "By Jove, I didn't think you could do it."

"With my left hand, too," I said wonderingly. Catching myself up, I hastily changed the subject.

A little later on as Colingraft left the room, stily feeling of his jaw, Jasper Junior whispered to me excitedly, "You've got him eating out of your hand, old top."

Things were coming to a pretty pass, said I to myself when I was all alone. It certainly is a pretty pass when one knocks down the ex-husband and the brother of the woman he loves and quite without the least suspicion of an inherited pugacity.

I had a little note from the countess that afternoon, ceremoniously delivered by Helene Marie Louise Antoinette. It read as follows:

You did Colingraft a very good turn when you laid him low this morning. He is tremendously interested in his prowess as a boxer or a boxer, or whatever it is in athletic parlance. He has been like a lamb all afternoon, and he really can't get over the way you whacked him. (Is whack the word?) At first he was as much as could be about it, but I think he really felt relieved when I told him I had seen the whole affair from a window in my hall. You see, it gave him a chance to explain how you got in the whack, and I have been obliged to listen to intermittent lectures on the many art of self defense all afternoon, first from him, then from Jappy. I have a headache and no means of defense. He admits that he deserved it, but I am not surprised. Colly is a sporting chap. He hasn't a mean drop of blood in his body. You have made a friend of him. So please don't feel that I hold a grudge against you for what you did. The funny part of it all is that mamma quite agrees with him. She says he deserved it! Mamma is wonderful, really, when it comes to a pinch. She has given up all thought of "putting a foot outside the castle." Can you have luncheon with us tomorrow? Would it be too much trouble if we were to have it in the loggia? I am just mad to get out of doors if only for an hour or two in that walled-in spot. Mr. Proopen-dyke has been perfectly lovely. He came up this morning to tell me that you have not succeeded at all and there isn't the remotest chance now that you will have a cold. It seems he was afraid you might. You must have a very rugged constitution. Britton told Blake that most men would have died from exposure if they had been put in your place. How good you are to me. ALINE T.

P. S.—I may come down to see you this evening.

I shall skip over the rather uninteresting events of the next two or three days. Nothing of consequence happened unless you are willing to consider important two perfectly blissful nights of sleep on my part; also I had the pleasure of taking the countess "out walking" in my courtyard, to use a colloquialism, once in the warm, sweet sunshine, again 'neath the glow of a radiant moon. She had not been outside the castle walls literally in more than five weeks, and the color leaped back into her cheeks with a rush that delighted me. I may mention in passing that I paid particular attention to her suggestion concerning my dilapidated, gone to seed garden, although I had been bored to extinction by Jasper Junior when he undertook to enlighten me horticulturally. She agreed to come forth every day and assist me in building the poor thing up, propping it, so to speak.

As for Mrs. Titus, that really engaging lady made life so easy for me that I wondered why I had ever been apprehensive. She was quite wonderful when "it came to a pinch." I began to understand a good many things about her, chief among them being her unvoiced theories on matrimony. While she did not actually commit herself, I had no difficulty in ascertaining that, from her point of view, marriages are not made in heaven and that a properly arranged divorce is a great deal less terrestrial than it is commonly supposed to be. She believed in matrimony as a trial and divorce as a reward, or something to that effect.

My opinion seemed to carry considerable weight with her. For a day or two after our somewhat sanguinary encounter she was prone to start, even to jump slightly, when I addressed myself to her with unintentional directness. She soon got over that, however.

We were discussing Aline's unfortunate venture into the state of matrimony, and I, feeling temporarily august and superior, managed to say the wrong thing and in doing so put myself in a position from which I could not recede without loss of dignity. If my memory serves me correctly I remarked with some asperity that marriages of that kind never turned out well for any one except the bridegroom.

LOCAL BANK ESTABLISHES CHRISTMAS SAVING CLUB.

The Courier wishes to call attention of its readers this week to an announcement made by the Hickman Bank & Trust Co., which is an innovation in banking circles in Hickman, viz: A Christmas savings department, in which one may deposit from 1c a week and up, thereby creating, without missing the money, a neat sum during the course of the year for a Christmas fund. The Christmas fund, like the measles, can hardly be dodged; it has become a fixed expense in a certain measure. The bank's plan is one that makes it easy to save money for this purpose. It also fosters the saving habit—in itself a valuable training to both old and young. This plan is a big success in the larger cities and has reached enormous proportions with each

JUDGE GARDNER SAYS NO STANDING ALLOWED.

Judge Bunk Gardner, who will be sworn in as circuit judge of this judicial district on the first of the year, had a sample of that honor bestowed upon him Saturday when he presided as special judge in Graves county court now in session, during the absence of Judge Platt, who was engaged in the Stowe-Johnson trial at Hickman.

Judge Gardner acted as if it was nothing new to him, and his actions on the bench of the big court were complimented not only by all of the attorneys of the local bar, but everyone else. The court room was crowded most of the day to hear a case in which there was much interest centered and also to see how Judge Gardner "did it."

ROWLAND DIES IN LONDON, FORMERLY OF HICKMAN.

News has been received here of the death in London, England, of John E. Rowland, who in the ante-bellum days, was chief clerk on some of the big Mississippi river boats, such as the Rolt, E. Lee, the Natchez and the Cham-

Deceased will be remembered here by many of the old citizens, as Hickman was his home. He was the man who built the big Amberg house, now occupied by Henry Amberg. He married a Hickman girl, a Miss Dodds, daughter of Rufus Dodds. She died during the yellow fever epidemic of 1878. A few years later he went to London, where he made a large fortune in the dry goods and millinery business. He was married a second time to Mrs. Mary Scott, in 1882, and that wife survives him. Occasionally Mr. Rowland visited relatives in the United States, but failed to get as far inland as Hickman.

A Presidential Proclamation by Woodrow Wilson

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his many blessings and mercies to us as a nation.

Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate the last Thursday of November next as a day of thanksgiving and prayer and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU DEATHLY SICK.

Stop Using Dangerous Drug Before It Salivates You! It's Horrible!

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't loose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling fine. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

Gardner informed the lawyers that they would have to speak out so that they could be heard throughout the court room, as he would not permit motions or orders being made in a manner that only the judge and circuit clerk could hear what was being said by the attorneys.

County School Notes

By Miss Virginia Laten
County Supt.

School will begin at Sycamore Chapel on Monday, Nov. 29th, with Miss Lorena Byassee, of Clinton, as teacher.

The play given by the Crutchfield High school Nov. 20th, was quite a success and reflected much credit upon this school. It was enjoyed by a large audience. A nice sum of about $34 was raised which will be added to the fund to be used for equipment for athletics.

Stubbs school has just purchased a number of new books for the library.

Several of our teachers will attend the District Association, at Princeton, this week.

The patrons of the new consolidated school have decided that it shall be called Rosewell Academy. We are glad to note that the attendance in this new school is better than it was in the two small districts from which it was formed. Interest is good and the community is looking forward to a very successful year's work.

JUVENILE BURGLARS OPERATE SUNDAY NIGHT.

Two negro boys, still in knee pants, were caught and locked up Monday for having broken into Rome's Restaurant and Jones Cafe.

In the former place they took some pies and candy. In Jones, where an entrance was effected through a back window, they loaded up on fireworks, candy, cigarettes, $4 cash, etc. A big rock was also found in the cafe which had been used to hammer the combination on the safe, but it failed to yield to the ancient weapon.

Officer Hamby stumbled onto the young culprits when he surprised one, wearing the distinguished cognomen of Roosevelt Love, with the question, "who was with you when you broke into that store?" Before the boy had time to think he said, "I wasn't in no store; de odder boy went in while I'ze on de outside watchin'." It didn't take long to learn who the other boy was; he goes by the name of "Gilbert." But it took some time to arrest him. The little negro had tunneled about ten feet back under a mound of hay in a barn out east of town. When the officers entered the barn someone called for the boy and the answer "Suh!" came from beneath the hay. It was impossible to establish further communication with the fugitive; he became as dumb as an oyster and wouldn't come out. It was necessary to move all the hay by way of digging him out. When the officers reached his lair they found the boy and his dog.

Both boys later owned up to having entered the places named above. Nice, crisp, appetizing pies led to their undoing. Getting the pie was so easy that they soon went from bad to worse. They are now in jail, and will probably get a reform school sentence. One of them, we understand, returned only a few weeks ago from that lair.

The increased price in gasoline has set up a howl among the Hickman dealers and users and some of both are accusing the producers with holding them up. The fact don't justify the "hold-up" idea. There is a real cause for the advance of gasoline, and it is nothing else than that which regulates all prices, viz, the matter of supply and demand. Thus it is shown that whereas five years ago there were 255,000,000 gallons of gasoline used in this country, there will be a billion gallons used this year, with the increase in its use still advancing at the same ratio. There is now considerably more than 2,000,000 automobiles in this country, with an annual output at this time amounting to 700,000 cars. It is believed that next year there will be a million made and marketed.

HISTORIC LIBERTY BELL IN FULTON COUNTY.

The visit of the great historic relic, the Liberty Bell, to Fulton last Saturday was one of the most pleasing and self-satisfying incidents of a public nature that has occurred in Fulton for a long while. It drew one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Fulton. It was not only an immense crowd but an orderly, good natured, well behaved one and composed largely of school children, who were welcome and desirable visitors.

The crowd was estimated at from 6,000 to 8,000 and even more by people who have a good knowledge of making estimates. Several Hickmanites were among the number.

WIND SINKS BOATS.

The high wind of Friday played havoc with small river craft at Hickman. Most of the small pleasure launches were swamped early in the game. The two large ferry boats, owned by Lube and Clay Barnes were sunk. The "Kentucky" settled in several feet of water on the Missouri shore, while the "Dixie" broke loose and went down at the head of No. 7 bar. All will be raised, but at considerable expense.

once. I have also noticed that the conflagration hazard is very great on account of the frame buildings and wooden shingles. If you recall, wooden shingles is the very cause of the destruction of the city of Jacksonville, Fla. These things should be eliminated as fast as possible and attention given to outside exposure. You should have a Board of Public safety, whose duty would be to look after and remove these capital hazards. To get Hickman into the class it belongs will cost some money. Of course, as soon as this is accomplished, a special meeting of the Chronic Kickers Club will be called and all manner of criticism indulged in.

"Now gentlemen, just bunch up these chronic kickers, set them on the side of the road and go ahead, forgetting that they were ever in existence. No matter what you do or attempt to do, you will never please the chronic knocker. A public official or a city administration that attempts to please everybody is sure to prove a failure. Jesus, our Savior failed to do so when on earth and for heaven's sake don't attempt to do what the good Lord failed, to do. Just make up your minds as to what is best for the future prosperity of your city, and will bring the greatest number of citizens and when this is done, take the 'bit' and go through with it, regardless of all the chronic knockers in the community. This is the only method by which permanent and beneficial results can be brought about.

"When any narrow minded, stingy close fisted, grasping property owner, is continually growling and complaining about paying a tax for improving the efficiency that is maintained—a department that is maintained for the protection of his life and property and the lives of his wife and children, the time has arrived when this family needs either a funeral or a removal to some other locality, and the community will be benefited, should either event take place. This is my private opinion of a chronic knocker, publicly expressed, and I feel that every fair minded and progressive citizen of Hickman will agree with me."

An American Mother's Thanksgiving

"THANKFULLY" sighs the harassed house mother. "Oh, yes, I suppose I am! But it does seem harder to feel properly grateful with turkeys soaring quite out of sight and the usual things that go with them almost beyond one's reach."

Suppose you stop to think—you with so great a cause for heartfelt praise—what some other women feel thankful for, women who wrote things like this from across the seas:

One in Germany whose husband was carried home to her with one leg amputated above the knee writes, "But we'll do the best we can to find for him some new way to make an honest living, and oh, dear heart, how thankful am I that he is so maimed, for now I may keep him with me!"

Another one, in France, whose daughter, but lately married, lost her reason when suddenly confronted with her young husband's name among the killed, says, "Heart lacerating as it is to hear her foolishly contented prattle about Didier, whom she constantly prepares to welcome home tomorrow, I thank the good God from the bottom of my soul for the mild lunacy which keeps her from realizing that Didier is dead and both her brothers missing and that I, her mother, am the most bereaved and desolate of women."

A third wrote from her home in Folkestone, England: "And little did we think we should ever get reconciled to our dear mother's death so soon after Aunt Lucy's! How true that God knows best, for from the deepest corner of my heart I feel grateful to the Lord for taking mother and Aunt Lucy home before the soul revolting war brought all this misery to us."

Then come, thou desponding American soul! Instead of turkey and mince pies serve rice pudding, fricassee, pot roast or even lamb stew. Look around your table at your well fed, warm and well covered brood, across at your kind, sound and all-there good man and most devoutly thank the good God for this blessed America of ours!

"Thanks to God" Our Song of Life

"Thanks to God" may be your opening and closing song. One brief life may be a life of gratitude. Have you a home? Then be thankful for it, however humble the home may be, for roses will not bloom more beautifully and the vines will not more gracefully cling to any other home. Have you friends? Cherish every friend you possess, for really you haven't as many as you think. Have you parents now alive? Cherish with fondness their every presence, for the time is not far away when you will look for them and they will not be here. Have you a brother, a sister? Make them feel your great and human worth by thoughtfulness and kindness to them.

So, friends, let the great past sweep before our memories, have the nation bow its knee to the Almighty God and let the individual speak out his gratitude, and, after all is said, there will remain many more blessings which call for our thanks as eloquently as those we have mentioned. Some of you may have seen the Sistine Madonna at Dresden, in some respects the most wonderful picture of maternal love which exists in the whole world. For a long time the canvas was covered with a crust of impurities gathered from its years of hanging, and an artist, in making repairs, discovered a cherub face in the dark background and was led to suspect the picture had been overlaid by time and neglect. He commenced cleaning it, and as he went on cherub after cherub reappeared until it was found that this priceless Madonna was on a background made up wholly of little heavenly cherubs. So those blessings for which we should give thanks are sometimes shamefully covered by our thoughtlessness and neglect.—Rev. W. A. Rupert of Pittsburgh.

"A SAFE PLACE TO TRADE"

A Song of Thanksgiving

By MINNA IRVING

[Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.]

THANKSGIVING to the Lord of Hosts, Who rules the mountain and the wave, Who cools the cannon's burning lips And leads to victory the brave. From lofty peak to level plain, From forest land to rolling sea, In fields our willing hands have tilled, Today we bend the grateful knee.

Thanksgiving for the bounteous gifts That crown the happy harvest year, The wheat all silver on the stalk, The corn all golden in the ear.

Thanksgiving for the countless herds That on the sunset hills increase, And thank thee most of all, O Lord, For all the blessed arts of peace!

A "Thank Offering" Box

A woman who has faith in Providence keeps what she calls her "thank offering" box. Into this goes through the year, from one Thanksgiving to the middle of the following November, a sum of money for every accident that is escaped, calamity averted or special joy.

These offerings are not confined to her own escapes, but each time some member of her family gets up from some threatened woe into the box goes the money offering of thanks to Providence.

Not the same amount is given each time and rarely large sums, for the woman is not rich, but a nice little sum is realized.

This is devoted to giving some one a happy Thanksgiving day. It does not always go into regular channels. As the woman says, the poor and hospitals are usually well cared for in holiday seasons.

Sometimes a homesick girl in a strange city is given car fare for the Thanksgiving gathering she would otherwise miss; once a music lover was given a season ticket to the symphony concerts; again a doctor's bill that had worried a young stenographer who had her mother to support was quietly paid.

In speaking of her pretty custom the owner of the thank offering box said, "Never had I known what thankfulness really meant until I started my box and saw the joy my thankfulness brings to others."

Such a box, besides cultivating one's sense of gratitude and making others equally grateful, affords great pleasure and interest in the spending. It illustrates as few other things do the truth of the saying that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

A PINE WHOOPING COUGH REMEDY.

Mother's, Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey is just the remedy for your children's cold ailments. The fact is that pine is a quick enemy of cold conditions. Its qualities loosen the mucous in the throat, soothe the lungs and open up the air passages. The combination of honey, soothing and pleasant, with the loosening pine quality makes this an ideal cough remedy for children. Each passing year brings for it new friends. A family of growing children can not afford to be without it. 25c a bottle. Adv.

The steamer came here under the auspices of the local Moose lodge, and this organization was benefited to the amount of about $75, to say nothing of the social feature. The Majestic is the old Lee Line Str. Rees Lee, and is the finest thing in the way of an excursion boat that ever anchored here.

"SOME" FARMS.

The American tourist was entertaining the lads of the village with some of his latest stories.

"Waal, yes," he said presently, "I guess we have some pretty big farms out there. I've known of a case where a man set out in the spring and plowed a straight furrow till the autumn; then he gathered the harvest on his way home."

While his listeners were gasping he went on:

"Only two years ago I saw a sad sight. 'One of our farmers was going round saying farewell to his friends, while outside his house waited seven four-mule teams with his pack.'"

"Where was he going?" asked one of his awestricken audience.

"Only half way across the farm to feed the pigs," replied the American nonchalantly.

"Did he ever come back?"

"Dunno; he isn't due yet. Why out our way we send young married couples out to milk the cows, and their grandchildren bring home the milk."—Ex.

MODES OF THE SEASON

INDICATIONS THAT CRINOLINE IS TO BE REVIVED.

Frock Recently Seen Seems to Bear Out the Idea—Bodice Girdle Much in Favor—Styles in New Fall Coats.

It has been the subject of conversation among fashion designers for the last two years as to whether the crinoline is again to come into vogue. Heavy cord has already been used in the bottom of foundation skirts, causing them to flare out in old-fashioned hoop effect, and now comes a model with heavy cord raised from the bottom of the skirt and run through a puffing in the silk just at the line of the hips. This frock was made in black and white checked silk, with full skirt trimmed with narrow plaited ruffles at the bottom. With it is worn a plain tight-fitted bodice of black faille, buttoned down the front, with well curved waist and with collar, turnback cuffs and armholes trimmed with frills of silver mesh net.

There is a continued use of the ruffle and ruche as a skirt trimming. A new skirt has a trimming of three-inch-wide side-plaited ruffles of the material run from the belt to the hem across the back of the skirt only, the front being left plain and the fullness laid in deep soft plaits at the line of the belt.

With the revival of old-fashioned skirt pulled straight around from hip to hip has come the use of the bodice girdle, a tight-fitted girdle made of the material in which the costume is developed and worn either with or without a shoulder strap attachment. It may have lacings in front or at one side or at both sides.

Large drop-brim hats are trimmed either with a plain band of embroidered ribbon or with satin ribbon knotted back and front, the ends extended beyond the brim. A pure white hat trimmed with a black taffeta ribbon band broadened in vivid art flowers is strikingly attractive. Some large-brimmed sailor hats have the slashed brim rolled back at one side, the edges caught by a stiff bow of a fan-shaped ornament of ostrich. For a plain, smart walking hat the broad, high-crown, narrow-brim sailor is smart, trimmed with a buckle and flat loops of grosgrain ribbon or with fan-shaped ostrich.

Some of the new fall coats button tight from the throat to the knees in single-breasted effect, and the long coat dress-style garment buttons straight down to the bottom of the hem. There are jackets closed in a bias line from the middle of the collar to the hips, and there are coats which open at the side from the shoulder to the waist, or to the ankle. There is not only a tendency toward the bias line of coat closings, but also to a one-sided trimming of coats. All jackets, whether long or short, are made with lower front edges pointed or square cut.

The basques of the jackets may slope slightly from front to back, from front to sides, or from back toward the front, but in all cases the rounded cutaway effect is avoided. The use of tab trimming at the edges of the basque and jacket openings is seen.

News Snapshots Of the Week

The war in the Balkans took on a more or less diplomatic aspect as the allies sent high officials to warn the Greek king; Greece was suspected of intention of arresting any of the allied troops retreating across her territory; the Bulgars were reported harassed by the French. The submarine controversy seemed likely to reopen, as Secretary Lansing requested from Baron Buri-an, Austrian foreign minister, facts on sinking of Ancona. Booker T. Washington, leader of the negro race and founder of Tuskegee institute, died. Insurrection was reported in India, native troops being used to suppress it. Mayor of New York city, John Purroy Mitchel, was rushed to the hospital and operated on for appendicitis. Dirt continues to shift in the Panama canal until the famous Gaillard cut is now completely blocked. A section of the Roebbing munition works in New Jersey and part of the Bethlehem steel plant were destroyed by suspicious fires.

Talks To Mothers.

Miss Mary J. Harrington, a teacher in an Iowa City school, recently gave an address at a Mother's and Teacher's Institute that every mother should read.

Miss Harrington's address was one special merit in that it was practical and logical and the idea beautifully expressed.

Some Questions.

"Some of the neighborhood questions which might be controlled by the co-operation of the mothers are:

"Why is there a different standard of action and ideals for the boys, than for the girls?

"Can the night street corner boys be kept at home?

"Why was home good enough until he was ten, eleven or twelve years old when he answered the call of the street?

"Why do the girls consider it their place to be at home?

"Will this double standard of action for the boys and girls ever conflict?

Chiefly Boy Problem.

"I believe the neighborhood problem is chiefly a boy problem. The boy's life is divided into three periods, infancy from birth to six years of age, childhood from six to twelve, and the adolescent period from twelve years to manhood. The trying time in the government of a boy is in the adolescence. One-third of all the population of this city is in the adolescent age and so you see we are dealing with one-third of the people.

"Why should parents relax the reins of guidance for the boy in his teens, when he is in the most critical stage — the street gang stage. This relaxation is not intentional on the part of the parents, it is only that the boy himself feels the call of the street and the gang, and the parents fail to go with him. In a way the gang spirit is legitimate, but the father should in spirit go with the boy and the mother and the home should receive the gang. Recall in the memory the pleasures of your child in that same enjoyment.

Boys' Club at Home.

"The best type of boys' club in the world meets in the home kitchen or in the living room. The evening lamp is the home's light house and the hour after sunset is the Sabbath of the day. The evening hour and the home ought to be made so that the children will love it. The parents should provide books and papers and magazines and games for schoolday evenings. On Friday and Saturday evenings extra social affairs may be held, an occasional party and a meeting of the crowd or the gang in some home under careful supervision. The boys and girls ought to meet together in these evenings and there should be an understanding and a neighborhood standard for going home in time. So every mother would know just when the children would be at home.

"Do you know your boy's friends? Do you ever take time to bake an extra loaf of raisin bread or an extra pan of ginger bread so your boy can share with his friends, who will by that token know that mother is also their friend?"

Mothers, Will It Pay?

We were forcibly struck the other day by the truth of a remark made by a man who at the time was under serious difficulty over the crop that had sprung up from the wild oats he had sown when a boy. A little friend of his was pointing over some chastisement, when he gently remarked, "Take all your corrections kindly and be thankful to any one who cares enough for you to tell you of your mistakes or warn you when you first begin to go astray." For, he continued sadly, "the more corrections you receive and profit by when young the less you will receive from the world when older."

A truer statement was never uttered. What a responsibility then, upon parents. Will it pay to close our eyes to the fact? All our corrections should be made with an eye to the future as well as the present. There should be a principle involved. Let our children see that it is our duty to punish them sometimes, never a pleasure. In our desire that their young lives be full of joy and gladness, will it be wise to refrain from imparting to them a knowledge of the sterner realities of life? Will it pay to allow them to go untaught? We must teach them so judiciously the difference between the trend upward and the trend downward, that of their own accord they will eschew those pleasures of a doubtful nature.

We cannot guard our boys and girls too closely. Many a fair flower languishes and dies before its time. It will not pay to close our eyes to the signs around us, thinking our boys and girls proof against these influences. Above all things, teach the girls to be natural. Do not allow them to get into these simpering, giggling, foolish ways that so many young misses appear to think smart, and yet do not cause them to feel that you desire to put "old heads on new shoulders." Far from it. Let young people be young people still, but the while not forgetting that there is far more real happiness in being pure and true than can be found along any other line.

Intersected by beaded wings, while a jaunty white plume in the rear falls gracefully over the left side. This is the kind of hat that has both wear and style.

Simple Home Remedies.

For Chapped Hands.—Five table spoonfuls of lemon juice, two table spoonfuls of glycerin and two table spoonfuls of alcohol.

For Sore Throat.—One teaspoonful each of salt, sugar and turpentine in a pint of water. Use as a gargle.

When giving a sick person an alcohol bath make a mitten for your hand out of an old bath towel. It will hold more moisture and be better for rubbing purposes.

A mustard plaster mixed with the white of an egg or vinegar instead of water will not leave a blister.

Velvet Blouses.

Among the dressier blouses those made of velvet are holding a very prominent place. As the material is very heavy, it is usually combined with chiffon, lace or georgette crape. In some instances the velvet is used to form bib effects. Other blouses are all velvet except for the sleeves. Many chiffon blouses are trimmed with bands of velvet in harmonizing or contrasting color. At any rate, one's wardrobe will not be complete this season unless one has a blouse showing some signs of velvet about it somewhere.

NEGRO STABBED TO DEATH. MURDERER MAKES ESCAPE.

Carl Rhodes, a negro, age about 25, with a single blow of a long bladed pocket knife, inflicted a wound on the body of Frank Smith, another negro, which cost Smith his life 30 minutes later. The knife was buried to the handle just below the victim's left arm. He was carried to a nearby house and died before a physician arrived.

Both are Hickman negroes and were picking cotton in the bottom.

From what we are able to gather concerning the trouble the story is about as follows:

A week or two ago, Smith pushed "Aunt Martha" Rice off her porch and slapped her daughter, Rhodes' wife. Since that time Rhodes has been on a stunt hunt for Smith. While in a wagon en route to the bottom about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, Rhodes saw Smith walking up the levee toward Hickman. He got off of the wagon, went up on the levee and waited for Smith and the fight followed. He is said to have made threats of what he was going to do. After the slapping, Rhodes came to town, then made his get-away. On the road to town he met Sheriff Middleton en route to the scene of the killing, but the sheriff did not know the particulars nor the negro wanted, so passed him by. The negro was seen in Hickman late Tuesday night but has evaded the officers and probably made good his escape.

Rhodes is described as being about 25 years old, weight 160 pounds, black, thick lips, about 5 feet and 7 inches high and wore a cap and an overall suit when last seen.

New Preacher—New year — new resolutions. Start new year by forming new resolutions of going to church one time on every Sunday and don't wait for the other fellow; just get up and go yourself. If you will do this, there will be one less down on the street Sunday morning talking about everything but what pertains to elevate the character of man and womanhood in this town. The disregard for the church and the laws of our country is why so many crimes are committed in our community. Start now and let's mould public sentiment against these things.

The cover is made of heavy, unbleached linen, cut in a strip about six inches wide and twelve long. This is edged with buttonhole stitching in black embroidery silk. Four eyelet holes are worked near the center as shown in the picture. A small spray of red flowers, with green foliage is embroidered in one corner and a border, scroll and "Phone Calls" are done in outline stitch in black.

This linen cover encloses a tablet on which names and numbers are written. Narrow red ribbon strung through the eyelets holds cover and tablet together and forms hangers for suspending the record.

Pin Cushion and Candle Shade

Certain patterns in Cretonne are suited to dresser scarfs, pin-cushion covers, slipper bags, candle shades and other little furnishings that are required for men's rooms. In the picture a dresser set is shown, including a scarf, pin-cushion and candle shade.

The cretonne shows a red rose and green foliage against a black and white striped ground. So decided a pattern is to be most sparingly used, and the scarf is therefore only bordered with the cretonne. A square pin-cushion is covered first on one side with a small square of the cretonne sewed smoothly over it. For the other side a considerably larger square is hemmed about the edges and pinned over the cushion.

The candle shade is made over a wire frame and consists of a circular piece stretched over the top and sewed to place. A hemmed strip hangs from the edge of the frame to which it is sewed.

Pillow Cover and Dresser Scarf

Cretonne is the most effective of inexpensive materials for making beautiful gifts. It is at its best in furnishings for the bedroom.

A pillow cover of cretonne and a dresser scarf of serim bordered with it are shown in the picture. The pillow cover is finished with a hem all around, and bound with black braid about the edges. The open end fastens with snap fasteners.

The dresser scarf suggests the way in which these strong, brilliant patterns should be used. A band of the cretonne is stitched along each side, leaving most of the surface white, as a background for the pin-cushion or other articles that may be covered with the cretonne.

With every county heard from in the State of Tennessee in the primary held Saturday for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, Congressman K. D. McKellar, of Memphis, leads his nearest opponent, former Gov. Malcolm R. Patterson, by 2,688 votes.

Certain it is that there will be a run off between Mr. McKellar and Mr. Patterson on December 15, the only detail in the news lacking being the exact lead gained by the congressman from the Tenth District.

How the Lea Vote will divide is not yet known.

KILLS THREE WILD
GEESSE IN BACK YARD.

Burrus Brasfield, of near town, was so annoyed by wild geese "honking" in his back yard Sunday morning that he could not sleep. He got up and poked his shotgun out at the back door and killed three. A bunch of tame ducks, which had become separated during the night and set up a concert of quacks, is supposed to have decoyed the flock of geese into settling in the yard. If Brasfield had had a pump gun he might have supplied the local market with fowls for the Thanks giving table.

Reasons For Gratitude

Let us be thankful for abundant harvests, for busy days in mill and factory, for the incentives to industry and its more adequate rewards. Let us be thankful that educational standards are lifted and educational opportunity is broadened so that home and state strive together as never before for the making of an intelligent citizenship.

Let us be thankful that old fashioned virtue is given highest place in the people's thought, higher than pretentious wealth or social prestige or any public office if it be unworthily gained or held. Let us be thankful for the integrity which vice cannot bribe corrupt, for the fine courage which vice cannot intimidate. Let us be thankful if by all the helps afforded us we have wrought worthily, and if we cannot with glad hearts look back upon our yesterdays let us be thankful that, by God's help, there may be brighter tomorrows.

If you enjoy a good, healthy financial report, look over the statements of the three Hickman banks published in this issue. The gain are not only very satisfactory and indicative of renewed prosperity, but a comparison with statements one year ago is conclusive proof that we have safely passed over the panicky and uncertain conditions which prevailed on our last Thanksgiving day. Everything points to better times and the healthy figures in the deposit column of the bank statements is one of the safe criterions by which to judge the immediate future.

Bootees and a Coat Hanger

The warm looking and dainty bootees shown in the picture will be easy to make by those who understand crocheting. They are crocheted of white zephyr and shaped to fit over the knees. A beading is worked in near the top and narrow pink satin ribbon run through it makes it possible to tie the boots so that they will not slip down.

A novel and very pretty touch is given these bootees by the tiny pink rose buds that are embroidered on them with silk floss.

Little wooden hangers are covered with cotton for a padding and over this light satin ribbon is shirred. The hook is wound with the ribbon and the hanger finished with a pretty bow.

The rag baby has the reputation of being the best beloved of its little owner's possessions. Here is a Topsy doll made of a black stocking with mouth and nose outlined with yarn and glass beads for eyes. By raveling an old knitted mitten or any knitted article, its head or kinky hair is assured.

The figure is cut out in two pieces, which are machine-stitched together, with an opening left at one side for turning it right side out. It is stuffed with cotton. Rompers and a cap of gayly striped gingham add to the fascination of this Topsy.

TWO JOHNSONS BOUND OVER TO CIRCUIT COURT.

The preliminary hearing given Lonnie Johnson, charged with killing Chester Stowe, occupied the greater part of the day Saturday. The defense was represented by W. J. Webb and the prosecution by Moore & Platt, Sam Crossland and County Attorney Roney.

There were numerous witnesses for both sides and every inch of the ground was contested by opposing counsel. The two principal witnesses were Mrs. Chester Stowe and Lonnie Johnson. The latter claimed he shot in self-defense, had a previous difficulty over Johnson having been caught by Stowe talking to Stowe's wife, although the couple was temporarily separated, and Mrs. Stowe was employed in the Johnson home. Mrs. Stowe was an eye-witness to the tragedy. She claims that her husband had a gun in his pocket but never did take it out; that he was shot from behind and the defendant exclaimed as he shot "now it's my time Chester." The killing occurred at the home of W. T. Johnson (uncle of Lonnie) who was paying off his hands that Sunday morning. Stowe is said to have had some money coming to him from Mr. Johnson and had gone over there for a settlement. He approached the door, according to witnesses, to the room where the "paying off" was going on, but turned and went around to the back of the house. Mr. Johnson called his nephew into an adjoining room and closed the door, and later young Johnson loaded a shotgun and went on through the house to the back door, where the killing occurred. W. T. Johnson claims that in the conversation with Lonnie in the room, to which he called him, he admonished his nephew to have no trouble with young Stowe. The prosecution attempts to establish an implication on the part of the senior Johnson as a result of that conversation in the middle room. Mr. Johnson contends his purpose in calling the young man into private conversation was in the offer of peace maker and to keep down any trouble.

Both sides are armed with the testimony of many witnesses and a hard legal fight may be expected to develop in circuit court.

Judge Stahr, after giving the whole of Saturday to the hearing of evidence, held Lonnie Johnson without bail and bound W. T. Johnson over in the sum of $1000 to await the action of the higher court, which convenes here in January.

THE FARMER AND WIFE TEACH

the teacher's supervision, the farmer and his good wife took charge. The farmer took the youngsters out to see his cattle, while he explained what he considered the best plan of feeding to make them a profitable proposition. Horses and mules, cows and calves, sheep and hogs were judged for points. Tobacco patches, cornfields and meadows were inspected and estimates made of crops still on the land or in the barns.

The girls were taken in hand by the good housekeeper and shown through her home from cellar to garret. Her methods of handling her milk and cream and butter were explained in full. Her turkeys, chickens and geese were visited. She told them what she considered the best breeds, and gave them her ideas of the feeding and the care of fowls. She even got out her winter supply of jams, jellies, preserves and canned fresh fruits and vegetables and told her audience what she considered the safest plan of "putting up garden and orchard sass" so that it would be certain to keep.

The farmers were delighted because it made the children see the farm from a proper viewpoint. The housewives were charmed because the children saw how closely connected good farming and good housekeeping were. The neighbors were pleased because the day became an informal social gathering which centered about the school. The teacher was glad to be able to have the children busy with real things and real problems, while their own parents and neighbors looked on.

If every county in the state could have a "Farm Day" or a half dozen of them scattered through the year, it would force the matter of education close home to every parent. As was mentioned above, one of the great stumbling blocks to definite and well-organized advancement in the schools of the state is that the school system is tied up in politics. This is not the fault of the school men and women, but the fault of the people. If the people love their children, and they do, they will see to it that the schools are lifted out of politics for all time to come.

NEW JUVENILE COURT FOR FULTON COUNTY.

After a lapse of some years, Fulton County's Juvenile Court has been re-established, or, to be correct, a new one established. While such a court was operated at one time by Judge Naylor and Rev. Geiger, it was never a court of record; merely what might be described as under dispensation.

But this court is now a recognized court with all authority pertaining to such courts, with Judge E. J. Stahr, by virtue of his office as county judge, as judge of the court and Rev. W. F. Remmberg chief probation officer. Rev. Remmberg will have two assistants at Hickman, one at Cayce, one at Crutchedfield and one at Fulton, who will be named later.

The chief function of this court, as the name indicates, is to look after boys under 17 years and girls under 18, charged with crime. The court undertakes to correct by placing them on probation under the supervision of the Chief Probation Officer; thus suspending the penalty which otherwise might be inflicted according to law and which seems too severe in cases of mere children. This court hopes to save the child from a criminal career by keeping him out of prison, where he would be subjected to the association and influences of hardened criminals. And the work of juvenile courts everywhere prove that this can and is being done.

The Fulton County Juvenile Court docketed its first case Tuesday, when it took charge of the two little negroes charged with housebreaking — Roosevelt Love, age 10, and Gilbert Kidwell, age 12. They will be placed in School and must report once each week to the Probation Officer. Their teacher is also to furnish weekly reports on their deportment.

The two chief officers of the court are both gentlemen who may be trusted to do their utmost in behalf of the erring youngsters with whom they may be called upon to deal.

TWO HOUSES, TWO BARN BURNED SUNDAY MORNING.

West Hickman was visited by a bad fire which was discovered at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, and was stopped only after two residences and two barns were reduced to ashes.

The blaze started in the Naifeh barn, but just how is not known. From there it spread to the old Price Leggate Livery Barn, used as a blacksmith shop, then to the residence of Mrs. Suda Julian, at the same time catching the residence of Price Leggate.

All of the buildings were destroyed, and, with the contents which burned, the loss amounts to something like $2000.

Mr. Leggate is probably the greatest loser. He carried no insurance. The loss of the buildings will amount to $1000. Most of his household goods were carried out.

C. C. York, who operated a blacksmith shop in the Leggate barn lost practically all of his tools and equipment; also four buggies. His loss is something over $200 with no insurance.

The Naifeh barn was valued at $200 with no insurance. They lost some hay, etc., and came near losing a valuable mare. As the animal was led out the roof fell in. The mare had already layed down because of the heat and was taken out just in the nick of time.

Mrs. Julian carried $500 insurance on her residence, and succeeded in getting out most of her household goods.

All of the buildings burned were frame. Those on the ground say the water pressure was extremely light and the fire-fighters were further handicapped by finding that the nozzle for the hose was gone when the cart arrived.

Mr. Leggate says if we had had a fire engine, his home and some of the other property could have been saved easily.

Mrs. Harry Tipton who has been visiting the family of W. J. Harper returned home Sunday.

TWO NEGROES KILLED IN BOTTOM SHOOTING SCRAPE.

Two more negroes are dead as a result of a shooting scrape pulled off in the lower bottom Friday night, in the vicinity of Paw-Paw Ridge.

The dead: Harvey "Slim" Washington. Levi Carter.

The trouble is said to have been caused by Slim and possibly some other negro drinking whiskey owned by Eli Jackson.

Eli is said to have called on Washington and found him at the home of Jack Curry, also a negro. Evidently both parties expected a settlement of this one particular whiskey issue, as Eli whipped out a pistol and Washington picked up a shotgun that was laying handy on a bed. Eli got in the first shot; it took effect just over the right eye of Washington and was fatal. As the latter fell, he discharged the shotgun, the contents of which entered the thigh of Levi Carter, an innocent by-stander. This wound also proved fatal, as Levi died a day or so later.

H. C. Barrett, the local undertaker who prepared the body of Washington for shipment to Cairo, found in the victim's pockets four shotgun shells, five 41 Winchester shells, a plug of tobacco and 50 in change.

Jackson was arrested by Sheriff Huddleston and lodged in the county jail. He is about 25 years old. Carter is about 40 years old and has a wife. A preliminary hearing will be given Jackson the last of the week.

It might be added that this is the twelfth killing in Fulton county since Aug. 7th. Last year there were only nineteen homicides for the whole year.

First Man to Brown a Turkey.

The browning of roasted turkeys to a uniform color throughout and the partial stuffing of the birds with truffles and an oyster and chestnut stuffing mixed with rare Madeira wine were invented by Dominick Lynch, a bean of the early decades of the last century. That stuffing was first served at a banquet given by him to Miss Kelly, a sister of Mozart's famous tenor, who came to this country to sing for the benefit of the Greeks, then rising against Turkey. Lynch always gave a turkey dinner to the celebrities of European opera and the drama who visited New York. Many of them expressed their amazement at the quality of the vands in a new country.

Starting with 5c a week you can accumulate a snug little bank account for defraying next year's Christmas bills. See our announcement—Hickman Bank & Trust Co.

NEW LAW FIRM.

Judge F. S. Moore, of Hickman, and Circuit Judge R. B. Platt, of Clinton, have formed a partnership for the practice of law. The first business transacted by the new firm was the preliminary trial Saturday of Johnson for the killing of Chester Stowe, in which they were employed to prosecute, together with Sam Crossland.

The firm of Moore & Platt ought to make a good, strong legal team, and both are well known throughout this section. Judge Platt's term as Circuit Judge expires the first of the coming year, after which he will devote his whole time to law practice.

ONE DELIVERY OF MAIL.

At least one delivery of mail on every holiday has been ordered by the Postoffice Department. Whereby business interests have been in accord with the plan. It has been the custom of postmasters in some places to suspend delivery on certain holidays. The department has ruled that the only way to regard the convenience of all interests is to deliver at least once.

Notice: Several of our members were disappointed last year in not being able to get engraved calling cards for Christmas gifts, because they waited too long to place their orders. If you contemplate giving cards this year, please let us have your orders early. Nothing more appropriate or more acceptable than nice engraved cards—they are useful, inexpensive and a constant reminder of your remembrance—but orders should be placed now.—THE COURIER.

S. D. Luten and wife, of Chicago, spent Thursday and Friday with their daughter, Mrs. Dan Briggs, enroute to Florence, Ala., to visit her sister, Mrs. Carl Danby. They will return Christmas and make their future home at Fulton.

B. G. Hale, Sr. and son, Arthur, left Monday for Memphis where Arthur will receive treatment for his ears under Dr. Minor.

Miss Elsie Laeschuer returned home Monday to Mounds, Ill., after a visit to Misses Ella and Ola Monan.

Mrs. John Denney, of Milan, Tenn., spent Thursday and Friday with her brother, L. A. Stone, and wife.
